

Chadley Richard Hollas, M.S., is an independent researcher and tourism development consultant currently based in Vermont, USA. He obtained his Master of Science degree in Recreation, Park and Tourism Sciences from Texas A&M University. His professional consultations and research concern tourism, rural development, agritourism, and the empowerment of communities within the context of tourism. He previously worked in tourism development, events, and hospitality across the USA and abroad.