

Kim Pham is a Ph.D. candidate in the School of Community Resources & Development, Arizona State University. Before graduate school, she worked for travel companies and nonprofit projects in Vietnam. Her research interests include overtourism, destination management, and visitors' and residents' perspectives about tourism.