

Eva Satkute Stewart is the Global Sector Head for Travel & Tourism at YouGov, a global public opinion and data group, where she is leading product innovation, international partnerships and business growth. She has over 14 years' experience as a business strategist with a passion for bringing market and consumer insights, cutting-edge analytics and consulting services to private and public organisations globally.

Eva has worked with hundreds of travel sector clients, including national, regional and city tourism authorities as well as major brands in various industry sectors helping to inform tourism growth strategies and identify market trends and opportunities.

Eva holds a BA in Economics & Political Science from Greenwich University, UK and an MSc in International Management from King's College London